The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 5, 7, 8 and 10 are rejected under 35 USC 102 as being anticipated by Smith (095). In figure 3 Smith teaches a multidimensional array of piezoelectric elements, including multiple acoustic impedance matching layers #40. Since the claim terminology does not specify that the multiple layers are associated with each other (for example, stacked one above the other), each individual element #40 can fairly be interpreted as one matching layer. Thus, in figure 3 of the Smith which shows an array of 6 x 3 piezoelectric elements and associated matching layers, this figure contains 18 matching layers #40. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5-8, 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 USC 103 as unpatentable over Smith (095) in view of Smith (406). Smith (095) in figure 3 teaches the basic multidimensional array transducer, but uses only a single thickness of a conductive acoustic impedance matching material (#40). However, Smith (406) teaches that an acoustic impedance match becomes more efficient when providing multiple layers of matching materials. Smith (also teaches how to design the layers to achieve a predictable outcome (this includes relationships between material density and layer thickness). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill of the art to provide multiple electrically conductive acoustic impedance matching layers in Smith (095) for the advantages taught by Smith (406). Since Smith (095) specifically desires the impedance matching layer #40 to be conductive to allow for the outside piezoelectric electrode to be electrically connected to ground, any subdivision of layer #40 (or provision of multiple layers for the acoustic impedance matching lawyer) would of necessity be electrically conductive it or to provide an operable device.
